

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a TV, in particular to a TV having a language selection function and a control method of the same comprising a translation relay site server for relaying character information translation requested by outside in order to translate character information included in a broadcast signal into a language requested by a user and output it, a control unit for transmitting the pertinent character information by contacting to the translation relay site server and receiving the translated character information through the translation relay site server, and a video processing unit for displaying the received character information on a screen, accordingly the present invention improves convenience of a user by translating instantly and accurately character information into a language requested by a user and providing it.

15

20